

THE ADVENTURES OF THE GRAND LIBRARIAN

*Each week, we will have a new chapter in the continuing saga, with a vital choice to be made at the end.
Follow along, and let us know what the Librarian should do next.*

A mist settled over the Realm of Sheldon, it lay heavy and dense upon the land. The Grand Librarian didn't mind so much as she had plenty of work to do reshelving all the books the children returned from the end of the school year. As she was busy shelving the books, a heavy one fell out of her arms. As she bent to pick it up she was swept into a world of Fairy Tales. The book was Grimm's Fairy Tales.

The Grand Librarian hit the ground with a thud! As she pulled herself up and looked out into the mist she couldn't believe what she was seeing. Is that a girl in a red hooded coat standing over there? Wait?!! This isn't the library! Where am I?

"Excuse me, I seem to be lost. Could you tell me where I am?" she asked the girl.

"Why the Enchanted Forest of course. I am on my way to Grandmother's house. Where are you headed to?"

The Grand Librarian thought this had to be Little Red Riding Hood. How peculiar! Enchanted Forest did she say?! Where am I going? "I don't know. I am from the Realm of Sheldon and I was in my library when.... I don't know exactly what happened. Then I was here."

Little Red thought for a minute and finally spoke, "I know who can help you. Rumpelstiltskin is a very powerful magician and he'll know just what to do, but to warn you it will cost you a favor. He lives on the way to Grandmother's house so I can bring you there but I won't dare step inside. Would you like me to take you?"

At this time is when she hears a cry for help from up above.
Should the Grand Librarian

- go with Little Red to see Rumpelstiltskin
- find her own way through the Enchanted Forest
- investigate the cry for help
